Elite Politics in Postwar Lebanon

Rola el-Husseini

“The author, drawing on years of study and analysis, proves herself a steady and judicious guide to recent Lebanese politics. She has produced an invaluable and much needed account of recent Lebanese politics, one anyone with an interest in Lebanon will benefit from reading.”

—Augustus Richard Norton, author of Hezbollah: A Short History

“Rola el-Husseini’s careful study of elite circulation in contemporary Lebanon adds depth to our understanding of the problems wrought by and the challenges to overcoming the country’s sectarian formula of power-sharing.”

—Michaelle L. Browers, author of Democracy and Civil Society in Arab Political Thought: Transcultural Possibilities

“I served twice in Lebanon, as political counselor at the American Embassy from 1981 to 1984, and as an ambassador from 1990 to 1993. As a practitioner I would have given a great deal for a comprehensive, well researched, and balanced guide to Lebanon’s chaotic politics. Thanks to Rola el-Husseini, now we have it.”

—Ryan Crocker, former US ambassador to Lebanon and Syria

Mirror for the Muslim Prince

Islam and the Theory of Statecraft
Edited by Mehrzad Boroujerdi

“Mirror for the Muslim Prince provides a fresh look at Islamic political thought. This volume brings together the work of eminent scholars on diverse debates in the Muslim world on the meaning of political authority and the values that ought to inform it. This collection is a welcome addition to the scholarship on Islamic studies.”—Vali Nasr, author of The Shia Revival and The Rise of Islamic Capitalism

We Are Iraqis

Aesthetics and Politics in a Time of War
Edited by Nadje Al-Ali and Deborah Al-Najjar

“Creativity is a form of resistance. This is the exhilarating message running through We Are Iraqis. Here is a rare chance for us all to see war’s effects in looted museums, pain-filled poetry, exiled studios, where, against the odds, Iraqi artists refuse to be silenced or pushed into the shadows.”—Cynthia Enloe, author of Nimo’s War, Emma’s War: Making Feminist Sense of the Iraq War

Localizing Islam in Europe

Turkish Islamic Communities in Germany and the Netherlands
Ahmet Yükleyen

In Localizing Islam in Europe, Yükleyen demonstrates how Islam and Europe have shaped one another and challenges the idea that Islamic beliefs are inherently antithetical to European secular, democratic, and pluralist values. Yükleyen’s rich ethnography shows that there is no single form of assimilated and privatized "European Islam" but rather Islamic communities and their interpretations and practices that localize Islam in Europe.

Religion and Politics
Raging Against the Machine
Political Opposition under Authoritarianism in Egypt
Holger Albrecht

“A clear and sophisticated survey of Egypt’s multifaceted opposition that will be helpful for students, general readers, and a handy compendium for specialists.”

—Fred Lawson, author of Constructing International Relations in the Arab World

Raging Against the Machine explains why political opposition emerges and persists over a protracted period of time in an autocracy—thirty years under Hosni Mubarak—without either changing the fundamental rules of the political game or disappearing as a consequence of the regime’s containment strategies. Albrecht uncovers a rich and dynamic world of opposition politics in Egypt. Apart from Islamist movements—by far the strongest opposition groups—we find other forms of organizations in Egypt, such as political parties, human rights groups, smaller protest movements, organizations representing workers’ interests, and informal pressure groups. These groups have employed different ideological and programmatic perspectives, such as Islamism, Nationalism, Liberalism, and Socialism.

Embracing the Divine
Passion and Politics in the Christian Middle East
Akram Fouad Khater

“Embracing the Divine provides a breath of fresh air in the field of Middle Eastern history. It opens a window onto the exciting world of religious belief and practice in the eighteenth century, turning our attention to Christian experiences in the Levant that challenge the notion of Christianity as Western.”—Beth Baron, author of Egypt as a Woman: Nationalism, Gender, and Politics

Unveiling the Harem
Elite Women and the Paradox of Seclusion in Eighteenth-Century Cairo
Mary Ann Fay

“A timely and much needed challenge to the Western ahistorical view of the institutions of the harem and veiling among Mamluk women.”—Cathlyn Mariscotti, author of Gender and Class in the Egyptian Women’s Movement, 1925–1939

Unveiling the Harem presents a lucid and historically grounded portrait of Egyptian women, stripped of the powerless victim narrative that is still with us today.

The Large Landowning Class and the Peasantry in Egypt, 1837–1952
Raouf Abbas and Assem El-Dessouky
Translated from the Arabic by Amer Mohsen with Mona Zikri
Edited by Peter Gran

“A fascinating study of the economic changes that ultimately led to the 1952 revolution in Egypt. Their two seminal Arabic-language books, now edited and translated into English in a single volume, are a sophisticated study of the relationship between class and state and the complex ways in which a distinct Egyptian capitalism emerged with the development of legal and social practices built around landownership in the late 19th century….Highly recommended.”—Choice

Becoming Turkish

Nationalist Reforms and Cultural Negotiations in Early Republican Turkey (1923–1945)

Hale Yılmaz

“Yılmaz examines how individuals and families responded differently to reforms. In doing so, she successfully demonstrates that a national program was both applied and received variously, not homogeneously, in different regions.”

—Michael E. Meeker, author of A Nation of Empire

Becoming Turkish deepens our understanding of the modernist nation-building processes in post-Ottoman Turkey through a rare perspective that stresses social and cultural dimensions and everyday negotiations of the Kemalist reforms. Yılmaz asks how the reforms were mediated on the ground and how ordinary citizens received, reacted to, and experienced them. She traces the experiences of the subaltern as well as the experiences of the elites and the mediators in the overall narrative—highlighting the relevance of class, gender, location, and urban and rural differences while also revealing the importance of nonideological, social, and psychological factors such as childhood and generations.

my name on his tongue
poems
Laila Halaby

“In her debut poetry collection, best-selling novelist Halaby narrates the need of any Arab American to navigate new realities while giving voice to old ones. . . . She deploys sarcasm and irony to express her bitterness over the trend of cultural demonizing, and her heritage, with its strong narrative of historical grievances, gives the poems a melancholy tone. VERDICT Halaby transfers her life’s experiences into emotionally touching poems. Recommended for all readers, especially those interested in Arab American literature.”—Library Journal

Cultural Criticism in Egyptian Women’s Writing
Caroline Seymour-Jorn

“Seymour-Jorn effectively highlights the interactivity between individual creativity and a socio-political contextualization set against Egypt’s past history of British colonization and within the dramatic changes wrought by the death of pan-Arabist Gamal Abdel Nasser in 1970 and the neoliberalism of his successor Anwar Sadat. A useful resource for those interested in Middle East studies, gender studies, and comparative literature.…Recommended.”—Choice

Gender, Nation, and the Arabic Novel Egypt, 1892–2008
Hoda Elsadda

“A sophisticated and thorough examination of over a century of literary discourse, it will have to be taken into consideration in understanding Egyptian literary history.”
—Rasheed El-Enany, author of Naguib Mahfouz: The Pursuit of Meaning

Exploring the literary narratives of prominent authors such as Naguib Mahfouz, Latifa al-Zayyat, and Mohammed Hussein Haikal, Elsadda interrogates the representations of femininity and masculinity in modern Arabic fiction. With a New Woman figure in Arabic literature, she distinguishes between those who support or critique modernist nation building; she also looks at the construction of the New Man and the texts that feature men who represent desirable and undesirable characteristics for the modern nation. By creating a dialogue with a broad range of novels, literary criticism, and social commentaries of men and women, Elsadda’s analysis of literary masculinities goes beyond the limitations of Arabic novels and can be applied to all third world literary works that have been described as national allegories.

Selections from The Art of Party-Crashing in Medieval Iraq

al-Khatib al-Baghdadi

Translated from the Arabic and illustrated by Emily Selove

Ribald jokes, flirtations, and wry observations of misbehaving Muslims acquaint readers with everyday life in medieval Iraq in a way that is both entertaining and edifying. Selove’s translation, accompanied by her whimsical drawings, introduces the delights and surprises of medieval Arabic humor to a new audience. Compiled in the eleventh century, this collection of irreverent and playful anecdotes celebrates eating, drinking, and general merriment.

Reforming Zoroastrianism in India and Iran

Monica M. Ringer

“An extraordinary book that brings together Zoroastrianism in India and Iran. It tells a fascinating story of interactions between Parsi and Iranian priests and intellectuals about the nature of Zoroastrian beliefs and practices. It is required reading for those in anthropology, history, and religious studies who are interested in a sophisticated account of transnational religious flows.”—Peter van der Veer, author of Imperial Encounters

The Perils of Joy
Contesting Mulid Festivals in Contemporary Egypt
Samuli Schielke

“This well-focused study unfolds along multiple lines of investigation ranging from diverse ways of experiencing the festival itself through variously couched denunciations of mulids, and attempts to reform them.”

—Ann G. Gold, author of A Carnival of Parting

Schielke argues that mulids are characterized by a utopian momentum of the extraordinary that troubles the grand schemes of order and perfection that have become hegemonic in Egypt since the twentieth century. Not an opposition between state and civil society, nor a division between Islamists and secularists, but rather the competition between different perceptions of what makes up a complete life forms the central line of conflict in the contestation of festive culture.

Stories of the Life and Times of Modern Kuwait

Craig Loomis

“This collection, in many ways, captures the spirit of life in modern Kuwait. Here one finds vignettes about the Kuwaiti nationals and the expatriates who come to Kuwait for work, including professionals, service industry personnel, and laborers. Loomis describes their diverse experiences with insight and humor. Many of these stories touch the heart. A vivid and fascinating panorama.”—Raymond Farrin, author of Abundance from the Desert

Beyond Love

Hadiya Hussein
Translated from the Arabic by Ikram Masmoudi

“A poignant story of loss incurred during senseless wars and of survival.”—Farrokh Chaudhry, author of Lines on a forehead: the naked and the veil

Beyond Love is a memorable novel, one that, like many works of fiction, offers a portrait of a nation and community and thus contributes to an understanding of events and motivations in ways that no new broadcast or journalistic report can replicate.”—Roger Allen, author of An Introduction to Arabic Literature

Originally published in Arabic in 2003, Beyond Love introduces English-language readers to one of the leading voices in Iraqi fiction today.

Tree of Pearls, Queen of Egypt
Jurji Zaydan
Translated from the Arabic by Samah Selim
Winner of the King Fahd Center for Middle East and Islamic Studies Translation of Arabic Literature Award

“For historians of the novel in the Arab world, Jurji Zaydan’s historical romances comprise one important ancestor of many modern novels, including the works of Naguib Mahfouz.”
—Terri De’Young, University of Washington

Tree of Pearls, originally published in 1914, is the last in a famous series of historical novels written by Zaydan, an accomplished historian whose books continue to be read widely in the Arab world today. Selim’s fluid translation introduces an English audience to one of the Arab world’s influential writers.
