GEORGE CLINTON
MASTER BUILDER OF THE EMPIRE STATE
John K. Lee
In George Clinton: Master Builder of the Empire State, Lee brings new attention to New York State’s first governor. He focuses on Clinton’s extraordinary military exploits, detailing the victorious Sullivan-Clinton campaign against the Six Nations, which paved the way for the surrender of Cornwallis and ensured eventual American possession of western New York lands. This engaging biography, enriched with an array of illustrations, shines a bright light on an early American politician whose remarkable vision and leadership powerfully shaped the Empire State.

Winslow Homer’s Empire State
Houghton Farm and Beyond
Edited by David Lake Prince and David Tatham

Winslow Homer’s Empire State: Houghton Farm and Beyond focuses on the period in the American artist’s life when he spent two summers in Mountainville, New York, at Houghton Farm, a rustic summer residence in the lower Hudson Valley region of the state. The residence was owned by his principal patron and friend since childhood, Lawson Valentine. The catalog, a complement to the exhibition of the same name, brings together a number of Homer’s watercolors, drawings, wood engravings, oil paintings, and ceramic tiles of the period from galleries, private collections, and museums across the country. The works depict various geographic locations from across New York State, including Houghton Farm, the Adirondacks, and Easthampton.

Lucinda; or, The Mountain Mourner

P. D. Manvill
Edited and with an Introduction by Mischelle B. Anthony

In 1807, a small rural New York press published the first edition of P. D. Manvill’s Lucinda; or, The Mountain Mourner. Although it is a memoir, Lucinda reads like a sentimental epistolary novel, where the heroine is seduced, abandoned, and then dies in isolation shortly after her illegitimate child is born. Mischelle B. Anthony’s critical edition rescues this once-popular cautionary tale from obscurity and positions it among such classic early American narratives as Charlotte Temple and The Coquette. In addition to providing insight into the Republican and nineteenth-century reading culture, Lucinda, as a historical document, provides a glimpse into one family and one community dealing with radical social and economic issues in early America.

Dalliance

A Novel
Diana Burg

Based on the actual Illinois divorce trial of 1860 that riveted the country with newspaper headlines displaying the personal lives of prominent citizens, Burg’s novel probes human motivations and failings along with a social climate percolating with the demands for civil and social rights of women. Dalliance transports the reader with exquisitely researched detail into the material culture of America’s mid-nineteenth-century upper-crust society. Richly drawn characters and Burg’s eloquent style combine to make this an engrossing and emotionally powerful novel readers will not soon forget.

OUR KNOWLEDGE IS NOT PRIMITIVE
DECOLONIZING BOTANICAL ANISHINAABE TEACHINGS
Wendy Makoons Geniusz

Traditional Anishinaabe (Ojibwe or Chippewa) knowledge, like the knowledge systems of indigenous peoples around the world, has long been collected and presented by researchers who were not a part of the culture they observed. The result is a “colonized” version of the knowledge. In Our Knowledge Is Not Primitive, Geniusz contrasts the way in which Anishinaabe botanical knowledge is presented in the academic record with how it is preserved in Anishinaabe culture. Her unique ability to navigate both indigenous and scientific perspectives makes this book an invaluable contribution to the field and enriches our understanding of all native communities.

THE BASKETBALL JOURNEY OF EARL LLOYD
EARL LLOYD and SEAN KIRST

“Reads like a good talk with your grandfather: It teaches you a lot of historical lessons; it makes you want to hear more.” —SLAM Magazine

“Lloyd is a trailblazing figure, often overlooked for his contribution to basketball and more. He was the first African-American to play in the NBA, suiting up for the Washington Capitols for the 1950 season . . . Lloyd, who spent most of his career with the Syracuse Nationals, suffered indignities such as being left home when the Nats played an exhibition in South Carolina. But when Lloyd hears the inevitable Jackie Robinson comparison, he just calls Robinson his hero.” —New York Post

ANYTHING FOR A T-SHIRT
FRED LEBOW AND THE NEW YORK CITY MARATHON, THE WORLD’S GREATEST FOOTRACE
RON RUBIN

“Fred Lebow was a dreamer, the kind of dreamer who pursued his dream and made it a reality. And the world is still reaping the rewards.” So begins this uplifting chronicle of a humbly born Holocaust survivor who parlayed natural marketing smarts—and a vision—into a major position in recent American sports. Lebrow started the New York City Marathon, an event that transformed footracing from an elite, austere sport into a wildly applauded, attainable pursuit.

Slices of Orange

A Collection of Memorable Games and Performers in Syracuse University Sports History

Sal Maiorana and Scott Pitoniak

In Slices of Orange, Sal Maiorana and Scott Pitoniak recapture the heroics of running back Jim Brown’s 43-point performance against Colgate at old Archbold Stadium; the pain of Keith Smart’s jumper that denied Syracuse a national title in 1987; and the joy of forward Carmelo Anthony’s levitation act in the 2003 NCAA basketball championship game. They tell of the fierce SU-Georgetown basketball rivalry and John Thompson’s incendiary comments that ignited it and how the Gait brothers, Paul and Gary, revolutionized the game of lacrosse and laid the foundation for a college sports dynasty.
